Call for Papers: Third Amsterdam Workshop on Greek Linguistics

For the third year in a row, a group of linguists in Amsterdam are organizing a workshop on Modern Greek linguistics on Monday, May 10 2010. All linguists working on Greek are cordially invited to participate, and submit an abstract for a 20 minute talk on any aspect of Modern Greek linguistics that may be of interest.

The workshop will be organized by the Department of Modern Greek Studies of the University of Amsterdam, in collaboration with the Meertens Instituut of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences. It will host an invited speaker from Greece and will take place in the centre of Amsterdam.

One-page pdf formatted abstracts, including examples and references, should be submitted before April 5 to Jeroen Vis at the University of Amsterdam: j.vis@uva.nl, to whom any further questions may also be addressed. Notification of acceptance: April 16.

The organizing committee: Jeroen Vis, Marika Lekakou, Marc van Oostendorp
